

Stonex and LumenRadio will join forces at the AFIAL trade show in Madrid on February 7th to 9th to showcase the award winning CRMX wireless technology and products.

Stonex is a long time leading distributor and installer of lighting and entertainment technology in Spain and distributes a host of top brands such as ETC, MA Lighting, Clay Paky, and Anolis. LumenRadio is the technology leader in wireless lighting controls and offers the award winning CRMX product range. A wide variety of models are available to meet requirements ranging from indoor entertainment events to permanent outdoor architectural lighting of buildings, bridges, and other large structures.

"Our Open House with LumenRadio last year sparked enormous interest in the CRMX technology. Several of our largest theatres and venues have since then gone wireless with the products from LumenRadio; establishing CRMX as the de-facto industry standard in Spain.", explains Javier Latorre, Manager of Engineering division of Stonex, and continues "It is also very encouraging for us to watch how fast the wireless trend now spreads throughout the rest of the entertainment and general lighting community here; the CRMX products have become "must have" equipment for even smaller venues."

"LumenRadio has enjoyed a great collaboration with Stonex and we look forward to continue the wireless revolution in Spain. I will personally be present at the AFIAL trade show meeting with key customers and demonstrating our CRMX product range", promises Jessica Björk, Marketing Manager at LumenRadio.

If you are attending the AFIAL trade show, make sure you visit the Stonex stand for a personal demonstration of the award winning CRMX wireless lighting controls.

For more information about AFIAL 2011, Stonex, and LumenRadio go to www.afial.com, www.stonex.es, and www.lumenradio.com.

